A group exhibition examining social dissolution through still life. A pause in dependency, a surrender of instantaneous access. A stagnant heatwave hangs over the city.

Offline presents photographs from the 1970s-current as an examination of social dissolution over the passage of time, creating an exhibition as a homage to city life. Featuring historical and contemporary selections, Offline examines the city from a psychic space, a reimagining of the city as a studio, a place of resistance, a place of collective memory.
